Market Analysis Explanation

This is an explanation and overview of this market analysis.

This Comparative Market Analysis will help to determine the correct selling price of your home. Ultimately, the correct selling price is the highest possible price the market will bear.

This market analysis is divided into three categories:

- 1. Comparable homes that are currently for sale
- 2. Comparable homes that were recently sold
- 3. Comparable homes that failed to sell

Looking at similar homes that are currently offered for sale, we can assess the alternatives that a serious buyer has from which to choose. We can also be sure that we are not under pricing your home.

Looking at similar homes that were sold in the past few months, we can see a clear picture of how the market has valued homes that are comparable to yours. Banks and other lending institutions also analyze these sales to determine how much they can lend to qualified buyers.

Looking at similar homes that failed to sell, we can avoid pricing at a level that would not attract buyers.

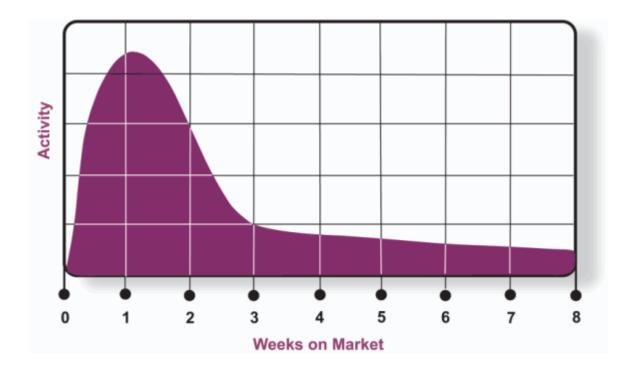

This Comparative Market Analysis has been carefully prepared for you, analyzing homes similar to yours. The aim of this market analysis is to achieve the maximum selling price for your home, while being able to sell your home within a relatively short period of time.

Market Analysis

Activity vs. Timing

This chart highlights the importance of pricing correctly at market value.

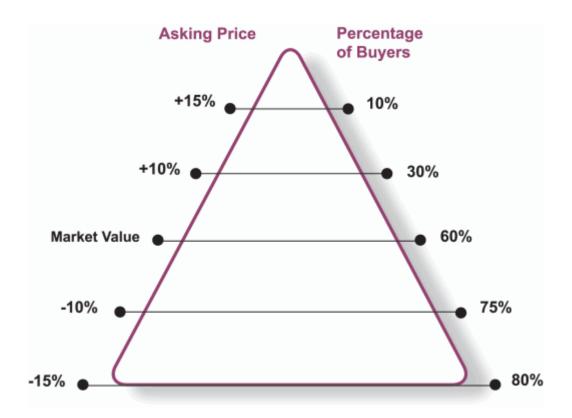

This chart illustrates the level of excitement and interest in a new listing over time. It also demonstrates the importance of pricing correctly. When a property is first listed, it generates a very high level of interest from prospective buyers, which reduces dramatically over time. It is important to be priced correctly from the beginning, during the peak of this curve.

Market Analysis

The Importance of Pricing

This chart highlights the importance of pricing correctly at market value.

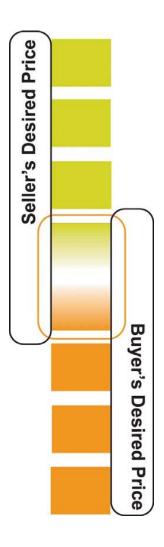

This graph illustrates the importance of pricing correctly. The centerline represents market value. As you move above this market value, you attract much smaller percentage of prospective buyers, greatly reducing your chances of a sale. Conversely, as you move below market value, you attract a much larger percentage of potential buyers.

Market Analysis

Setting the Price

This chart highlights the importance of pricing correctly at market value.

When setting a price for your property, the listing level must strike a balance between the seller's need to achieve the best-possible return and the buyer's need to get good value. With many years of experience, a professional Real Estate Agent can help you set a price that will accomplish both objectives.

Establishing market value

The market value of your property is determined in exactly the same way as any other commodity — what a buyer is willing to pay for it in today's market. Despite the price you paid originally, or the value of any improvements you may have made, the value is determined by market forces.

Look at the competition

Buyers look at about a dozen properties on average before making an offer on a property. As a result, they have a good overview of the market and will compare your property against the competition. If it's not in line with similar properties that are available, buyers won't consider it good value for money.

The Home Marketing Process

Prepare The Property

One of the most important things you can do to get your house sold in the shortest amount of time and most amount of money is to prepare the property to look like a model home. You're not just selling a house, you're selling a dream to potential buyers who want the perfect home for them and their family.

The Webster Team has an expert stager that consults on each listing. She will give detailed recommendations to be completed prior to your house going on the market. They may be as simple as a deep cleaning and re-arranging some furniture to painting, planting and making repairs. Any repairs that can be done ahead of time, could save you money at the time of inspections.

Your home has only one opportunity to make a first impression – make it a good one!

Here's a few tips for staging:

Outdoor

- ➤ Improve the curb appeal with an attractive front door and porch with seasonal flowers. Remember, this is the one place a buyer is standing in one place for any length of time waiting for their agent to get in the front door.
- > Keep the yard mowed and bushes trimmed. Water and fertilize when needed.
- Repair sagging gutters.
- Polish fixtures and replace doorbell if damaged.
- > Make sure your house number is visible from the street.
- > Fresh mulch around trees and plantings is visually impressive.
- Pressure wash exterior if needed.

Indoor

- ➤ Kitchens and bathrooms must be spotless. If these areas are cluttered or dirty, buyers make the assumption that the whole house is dirty and unkept.
- > Keep sinks clean of crumbs in the kitchen and toothpaste or hair in baths. Run a fresh lemon through the garbage disposal to remove odors in sink.
- ➤ Repair leaky faucets and running stools.
- Polish wood floors, shampoo carpets.
- > Dust furniture including around spindles on stairs. Watch for cobwebs in corners!
- Wash windows and glass doors.
- Pack away family pictures. Get ready to move!
- > Don't cover up the fireplace with plants, pictures or TVs.
- Make beds, clear nightstands and dresser tops.
- > Dirty clothes go in a hamper with a lid or into the washer every day.

- Empty trash from bathrooms every morning.
- No color water cleaners in toilets. Be sure lids are closed on toilets.
- > Remove or lock up any guns, knives or other weapons you may have in the house.
- > Take prescription medicine with you or hide out the range of vision.
- > Keep trash cans outside if allowed. If they're in the garage, be sure to close the bags tightly so odors don't invade the garage space.

The Home Marketing Process

Showing the Property

Allowing easy access to the property is essential. Houses sell faster when a seller requires little or no notice to see the house. This can be hard with pets and/or children, but make it as easy as possible for the buyers to come on short notice. You will typically get more showings if you are accommodating to the buyers/agents.

If, for some reason, you are home when the buyers arrive, be cordial, wave and then leave for a bit (even if it's just for a quick walk around the neighborhood). Do not interrupt the agent because they are going to be doing their best to sell your house to their buyer. When owners are present, buyers feel uncomfortable and will rush through.

We want buyers to experience your home and have the time to picture themselves and their belongings in your house. We want them to become emotionally attached to the house.

Here's a few tips:

- Open all curtains/blinds to let in as much natural light as possible.
- > Turn on all lights/lamps.
- ➤ Have music playing softly in the background. If you don't have a CD find a station that plays soft music. Create a welcoming mood.
- > Put pets in kennels or take them with you for showings.
- ➤ If fragrances are used, make them "homey" scents such as cinnamon or vanilla.
- > Clean litter boxes every morning.
- Have information about the house straight and organized.

Home Warranties

When you sell a house, you can purchase warranties that will protect you against most ordinary flaws and breakdowns for six months (this may vary with warranty companies) while your property are on the market. This is great protection for the unexpected things that may come up during the listing period.

This is also a good marketing tool to attract buyers. It offers them some security to ease their mind of the same unknowns of a house they're purchasing. Even with a warranty, buyers will most likely have the home inspected.

A home warranty program will give you peace of mind, knowing that the major covered components in your house will most likely be repaired if necessary. Ask me for more details about home warranty packages.

Recommended Home Warranty Companies

Following is a list of recommended Home Warranty Companies. These are vendors we have worked with in the past and that have been recommended to us by satisfied customers. These recommendations are made on an informational basis only and are offered as a convenience to you. We accept no responsibility.

Receiving An Offer

Once a buyer has decided that yours is the home they wish to purchase, they will determine what offer to make on the house. The buyer writes a contract with his or her agent and sends it over to us and we will review the details of the contract with you. At this point you have three options; accept the offer as written, re-negotiate the terms of the offer or reject the offer in full.

Keep in mind that there's more to an offer than just the price. Although that is important, a buyer may ask for an extended closing date, for you to cover some of their closing costs, longer inspection periods, low earnest monies, etc. All of the details are important to the negotiations and we will discuss each of these aspects with you.

Once we have come to terms with a buyer, both parties will sign a counter offer stating that they agree to the terms of the contract. Once all parties have signed the counter offer, that date constitutes the effective date of the contract. The buyers' earnest check is deposited with the title company and the inspection period begins.

The step-by-step contract procedure for most single-family home purchases is standard. The purchase agreement used is a standard document approved by our local real estate board. The purchase agreement or contract constitutes an offer to buy and, once accepted by the seller, becomes a valid, legal contract. We will do our best to explain the contract to the best of our abilities but if you have questions about the legalities of the contract, you would be well-served to contact a real estate attorney.

WEBSTER TEAM Proud Real Estate Agents Of KELLER WILLIAMS F A N. N. E. T. N. C. F A SURVEY OF THE COMMON CONTROL OF THE COMMON CONTRO

Inspection Period

Home Inspection

The inspection will include the following:

- Appliances
- Plumbing
- Electrical
- Air conditioning and heating
- Ventilation
- Roof and Attic
- Foundation
- General Structure

The inspection is not designed to criticize every minor problem or defect in the home. It is intended to report on major damage or serious problems that require repair. Should serious problems be indicated, the inspector will recommend that a structural engineer or other professional inspect it as well.

Your house cannot "pass or fail" an inspection and the inspector will not say whether he/she thinks the home is worth the money that was offered. The inspector's job is to make the potential buyer aware of repairs that are recommended or necessary.

Once inspections are completed, the buyer will submit a document requesting repairs to be completed, credit for repairs, reduction in the price of the house, or additional monies applied to closing costs. The other option a buyer has is to cancel the contract based on the results of the inspection. We will negotiate the requests made within the timeframe already agreed upon in the original or counter offer.

We encourage you to not be present at the inspection. This is the buyers opportunity to be educated about the investment they are about to make in purchasing your home. You will receive a copy of the inspection report at which time you can ask for any clarification you feel is needed.

Preparing for Closing

Now that your offer has been accepted there are several items that need to be completed prior to closing. Here we'll verify financing, review preliminary title work and complete all inspections.

The next several pages outline the major activities that take place. As always I will be available to walk you through the process.

What Is a Real Estate Closing

A "closing" is where you and I meet with some or all of the following individuals: the Buyer, the Buyers' agent, a representative from the lending institution and a representative from the title company, in order to transfer the property title out of your name(s). The purchase agreement or contract you signed describes the property, states the purchase price and terms, sets forth the method of payment, and usually names the date and place where the closing or actual transfer of the property title and keys will occur.

At closing, you will be required to pay all fees and closing costs in the form of "guaranteed funds" such as a Cashier's Check. If you had equity in your property, these expenses will be deducted from those proceeds. Your agent or escrow officer will notify you of the exact amount at closing.

Role of the Title Company

A Title Company may handle the following items. NOTE: In different parts of the country, attorneys, lenders, escrow companies and other persons who are independent of title companies perform some or all of these functions.

Earnest Money – An agreement to convey starts the process once it is received at the Title Company. Once you submit the loan application, it is usually subject to a credit check, an appraisal, and sometimes, a survey of the property.

Tax Check — What taxes are owed on the property? The Title Company contacts the various assessor-collectors.

Title Search – Copies of documents are gathered from various public records: deeds, deeds of trust, various assessments and matters of probate, heirship, divorce, and bankruptcy are addressed.

Examination – Verification of the legal owner and debts owed.

Document Preparation – Appropriate forms are prepared for conveyance and settlement.

Settlement – An Escrow Officer oversees the closing of the transaction: you sign the deed, the buyer signs a new mortgage, the old loan is paid off and the new loan is established. Seller, agents, attorneys, surveyors, Title Company, and other service providers for the parties are paid. Title insurance policies will then be issued to the buyer and their lender.

Preparing for Closing

Utility/School Contact Information

It's important to make arrangements for cancelling home utilities such as the electricity, water, cable, etc. Advise them of your desired date for final reading and give them your new address for final billing. Request deposit return if appropriate, and arrange for immediate service at your new address.

Moving

CONGRATULATIONS! You have closed on your property and now you are ready to move! The next few pages contain tips and checklists so that your move is as organized and effortless as possible.

Think about your move as a series of small projects that you can begin while your home is under contract. Your move will progress as your contract and closing progress. That way, when the day comes to physically move your belongings, most of the details will be taken care of.

Moving Checklist

What to do before you move...

☑ Two months before moving

Decide whether to move yourself or hire professionals. Make reservations with a moving company or truck rental company. Tip: Call three companies for estimates to compare.

Gather packing supplies: boxes, packing material, tape, felt markers, and scissors.

If you're moving a long distance, make travel arrangements with the airline, hotel, and rental car agency. If you're driving to your new home, get maps and plan your travel route.

Save all moving receipts. Some moving expenses are tax deductible. Check the current tax code for requirements.

Place your legal, medical, financial, and insurance records in a safe and accessible place.

Purchase insurance coverage for valuables to be moved.

☑ One month before moving

If you're driving, have your car tuned up.

Get medical records from your doctors, dentist, optometrist, and veterinarian.

Send items (rugs, drapes, clothing, quilts, bedding) to the cleaners.

Tips to make your move a little easier...

☑ Packing Tips

Gather boxes in all sizes from friends, neighbors, and stores.

Collect cushioning material such as bubble wrap, Styrofoam pellets, furniture pads, old blankets, plastic bags, tissue paper, newspapers, and small towels to use as padding inside boxes.

Create a "portable packing kit" with marking pens, a tape measure, packing tape, twine, and scissors. Carry it with you as you pack up items around your home.

Reinforce the bottom of boxes with extra tape for added strength.

Label each box with the name of the room in your home where it should be placed.

Number the boxes and keep a list of which boxes go in which room in your new home.

Label boxes containing fragile items with large red lettering.

Place china in plastic bags and stack plates upright on their sides, not flat.

Pack your TV, stereo, and computer in their original boxes whenever possible.

Keep boxes to 50 pounds or less.

Pack heavy items into their own smaller boxes and place lighter items together into larger boxes. (Don't pack all your books into one box!)

Don't move flammable, combustible, corrosive, or explosive items such as paint, gasoline, and ammunition.

Pack a bag of personal items you'll need during the move (change of clothes, toiletries, medicine, maps, food, and drinks). Keep it in an easy-to-find place when you pack.

Helping Children Cope with the Move

- 1. Show the children the new home and their new room prior to moving. If this is not possible, pictures or videos will help them visualize where they are going.
- 2. Assure children that you won't forget their friends.
- 3. Make a scrapbook of the old home and neighborhood.
- 4. Throw a good-bye party. At the party, have their friends sign a t-shirt.
- 5. Have your children write good-bye letters and enclose their new address. You may wish to call the other children's parents so that they will encourage return letters.
- 6. When packing, give your children their own boxes and let them decorate them.
- 7. Start a scrapbook for your new home.
- 8. Visit your children's new school, park, church, etc... Take a camera.
- 9. Help your children invite new friends over to your new home.
- 10. Let your children choose a new favorite restaurant. This will help them feel in control of their new environment.
- 11. Encourage your children to send letters about their new home to their friends.
- 12. Involve your children in groups, sports, and activities like the ones they used to participate in.
- 13. Remember, even if you only lived in a home for a few years, to a young child it is nearly their entire lifetime.

Helping Pets Cope with the Move

Moving to a new home is always stressful no matter whether you are a human or an animal and your pet will always sense a change long before it physically occurs. They will sense your change in mood and your re-organization around the house. One of their biggest fears will be that they will not be moving with you, so it is essential that you give them plenty of attention and reassurance before, during and after the move.

When the big day comes, it is best to keep your pet in a room that has already been packed. Keep their belongings with them, for instance bedding, toys, water and food and their litter tray. This will ensure that even though they may be a little stressed, at least they are safely confined so not allowing them to escape or get caught up in the main upheaval.

When it's time to leave, put your pet into a carrier or cage if need be, with a familiar blanket and toy and let them travel with you. If you are sure that your pet will not cope with it all, it might be worth booking them into a kennel or leaving them with a pet-sitter during the move. Otherwise your vet may suggest a sedative in extreme cases.

Once moved, ensure that you follow the same process by keeping them in a room out of harm's way - give them their toys/blanket and let them explore their new surroundings. Try to keep your pets in the room until everything has been moved into the new home. Give them some TLC and introduce them to the home. Ensure that you give plenty of cuddles and play time. If you have a dog, take him for a walk as soon as is practical: all this is so important and will help your pets to accept their new home.

After a few days or so, it will be fine to wash the bedding, once they have become used to new smells and have explored inside sufficiently. Pets also are more comfortable with routines, so try to get into your normal routines in the new home as soon as possible.

Most pets, especially cats, can be very territorial and nervous during a move. They may try to return to their original home, so it is essential that you keep them inside for a couple of weeks after the move and slowly introduce them to the outside. The first time you let them out make sure it's a quiet time. Ideally do so when food has been withheld few hours so that they are hungry. When you want them to come back, use a sound like tapping the bowl, or one that they recognize. Repeat this if necessary and leave them a little longer each time. Slowly over time, they will then start to determine their own territorial boundaries.

With dogs, always check that the outdoor area is secure so they can roam in safety. You may find that accidents may happen, so try not to make a fuss or punish them. Always praise them when they go outside. To help your dog settle better, take them for lots of walks to explore their new surroundings.

Let's get started

Our goal is to make the home selling process efficient, effective and as hassle-free as possible. In order to do that, we want to gather some information that will help us in areas of communication, expectations and details about your property.

As you can imagine, we are on the phone following through on the many details of our clients' transactions. Respectfully, we do not answer calls during appointments or when we are with our clients. If you get voicemail, please leave a detailed message and contact number. We will return the call by the end of day.

First, you'll find a Seller's Disclosure to complete. This is an 8 page document where you provide pertinent information about your house. It's important to answer these questions honestly, factually and with no assumptions. If you don't know the answer to a question, don't guess or assume – just write in "don't know".

Another document to prepare would be one year of all your utilities broken down by month. We've provided a spreadsheet to complete. Buyers frequently ask for utility amounts in their consideration to make an offer on a property. This is important information that the logical buyer will request. We want to be pro-active and have that ready and available for them to review.

We'd also like a list of all upgrades/repairs, mechanical or decorative that have been completed in the last 2-3 years. Be brief with the explanation along with the year it was done. If you know the amount spent on the work, include that as well.

To help us market your home and complete the descriptive tags throughout your house, we would like to know the top 10 special features that you like best about your house. This information will also be displayed and/or available for prospective buyers. It will help draw attention to those features and start the process to emotionally connect them to your home.

Another avenue for finding the right buyer for your home is through our Word of Mouth letter.

The final item, and possibly one of the most important, is to write a letter to prospective buyers explaining why you love your home, neighborhood, schools, location, holidays, etc. This will "tug at the heartstrings" of the emotional buyer. It can create an emotional tie between them and your house. It helps them picture their family living in the home and making memories just like you did with your family when you moved in. A sample letter is attached.

To finalize all the details we've enclosed a sheet to help us understand your communication expectations, information about your pet(s) and a checklist of things we need from you in order to have your home listed and ready for showings.

Home Selling Guide The Home Marketing Process

The Home Marketing Process

WORD OF MOUTH LETTER

Dear (Friend),

(Sellers) have recently employed me to market their home at (address). I have enclosed a property flyer of their lovely home.

You might be wondering why I would be sending you this information. One of the key components of many marketing plans is to identify distinct groups of buyers. Once identified, advertising, direct mail and other forms of promotion can be focused on the group, catching their attention and triggering a phone call for more information. Because each home attracts a different buyer group, I devise a unique plan for every home marketed. Then take action to promote a successful sale.

Enclosed is a pie chart that displays where buyers come from. You'll see that 18% of those buyers will come from word of mouth. That is why I'm writing you today. You never know when it might be the 18% that causes the (Seller's) home to be sold. If you know anyone who might be interested in purchasing this home, please refer my name to them or have them text () to () to receive a flyer on their phone.

If I can be of any service, please call 913-406-9731.

Sincerely,

Memory Jogger

In order for us to provide you with excellent service, we want to send letters with a flyer of your home to 20 of your friends, family, co-workers or others who may be interested in your home. You never know who's around them that may be looking to make a move. Below we've made a Memory Jogger list to help you think of individuals that we can send your home announcement to. Pull the next sheet out and complete the list of people and their contact information we can use to market your house.
